

Kali Prisara Pravasyodyama Samsthe

Kali Parisara Pravasyodyama Samsthe formed in the year 2007, and registered under Karnataka Societies Act has its base in Joida, a village nestled in the Western Ghats. A non-profit organization established with the primary objective of promoting ecotourism activities in the Uttara Kannada district and conservation of forest and wildlife with community participation, Kali Parisara Pravasyodyama Samsthe is committed to strengthening people's livelihood bases by adopting ecologically sustainable practices. Its primary motto is 'Ecotourism with a difference'.

Kali Parisara Pravasyodyama Samsthe is an organization that a group of 25 friends hailing from different parts of Joida taluk started with a dream to use their skills and indigenous knowledge to introduce the rich biodiversity of Western Ghats to ecologically conscious tourists and those interested in issues of environmental conservation. Visitors who stay amidst lush green forests in simple but comfortable 'homes' can choose to venture on jungle walks, water rides or relax in a homely atmosphere enjoying the serene surroundings.

The uniqueness of this endeavour lies in the sheer range of choices that it has opened up for local communities to explore ecologically sustainable livelihood opportunities.

Our Thrust Areas

- Identifying hitherto unexplored locations of Joida taluk with a potential for tourism, especially those with rare flora, fauna and rich cultural history
- Exploring market linkages for home made produce
- Promoting ethnic foods
- Networking with institutions committed to conservation of biodiversity
- Training local youth as tourist guides
